

Dethronement of the golden calf

The wave of consciousness is rising. Instead of thinking how best to arrange yourself at the altar of the god, we see better and better that 'the king is naked'. A general laughter of relief will soon break out, with astonishment that we are still taking on the usury tricks of his priests Why? Because how many crises, how many wars, how many horrors do we need to stop believing that we are completely ego-separate and that our interests are completely egoseparate. For what else we need to see that our separateness is only surface, like the separateness of the branches of one tree. Then it will be difficult to divide
